JOHN ROSEBERY MACKEY,
THIS LITTLE BOOK IS DEDICATED

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

THIS little book was first compiled in the hope of supplying some useful assistance to the reading public. The modest place which it has kept for more than twenty years seems to show that it has not been without its value.

It was not intended for scholars nor for linguists, who do not need it. It was planned to help the large number of readers who often wander far afield in the world of books, and who know but little of any language than their own. For them the signs and directions have been made as simple as possible, and it is hoped that they will be found clear.

The original edition contained considerably more than the 10,000 words claimed for it, and for this new edition about 1500 words have been added, and the whole work has been carefully revised. The new words are for the most part names of persons, places, characters in literature, etc., which have come into prominence since the publication of the first edition. It may safely be claimed that no other single work contains them all ch is pronounced as in choose.

ĉh " " Sc. loch, Ger. aĉh.

g is always hard in the pronunciation, as in get.

h " an aspirated sound.

·h is strongly aspirated, as in ·hither, ·horrid.

ng is pronounced as in ring.

ñ " " " Fr. boñ-boñ.

ow " " " now.

sh " " " show.

th " " " thin.

ṭh " " " ṭhither.

y " " " a consonant, as in you.

zh " " " s in treasure.

- indicates a rapid pronunciation or running together of two syllables: as Mercier, mâr-s-ê-â', almost mâr-s-yâ.

' indicates the principal accent.

" " " secondary, or weaker accent.

NOTES ON SOUNDS IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES.

In all cases foreign sounds should be learned from a native, if possible. In many cases they can be indicated only approximately by English sounds. Some have no equivalent in English.

French.

1. e and eu are both sounded peculiarly in French. They have been indicated in most cases by ẽ as in hẽr. It should be remembered that this is not the exact sound.

PRONUNCIATION

2. e at the end of a French word, and sometimes between two syllables, is pronounced very lightly. At the end of a word this has been indicated by the syllable yu, with the tie -. Example, Allemagne, ä'l-män'-yŭ. This slight sound is lost in rapid speech, but should be indicated, rather than pronounced, when the word is spoken deliberately.

3. u is pronounced like the German ü. These sounds are not heard in English, but are between ū in flüte, and wee in sweet. They are indicated by ü.

4. n in French has no equivalent in English. It is like a smothered ng, and is sometimes so indicated in dictionaries. But it is a worse fault to give it the full ng sound than to keep it a simple English n. It is indicated by ñ.

5. r is rolled in the throat in a way difficult for an English-speaking person to acquire.

German.

1. ch is a strongly aspirated sound, and has no equivalent in English. If it is impossible to acquire this sound, it is perhaps best to use hard c or k instead. It is indicated by ĉh. Ex. Berchem, bĕr'-ĉhĕm, — bĕr'-kĕm.

2. g at the end of a word has nearly the same sound as ch, and has been indicated in the same way. In this case, however, one who cannot pronounce ĉh, should use hard g. Ex. Altenburg, ä'l'-tĕn-bōōrch, — ä'l'-tĕn-bōōrg.

3. ö is different from any English sound, and resembles eu in French. It has been indicated by ĕ as in hĕr, but this is not the exact sound.

4. ü has no equivalent in English, but is like u in

PRONUNCIATION

French and in Dutch. It is a sound between ū in flute, and wee in sweet, and is indicated by ü.

Spanish.

1. Spanish vowels are all pronounced, though sometimes syllables are run together rapidly. Ex. Caimanera, kä-ē-mä-nā-rä. But the first two syllables are so rapidly spoken that they have the effect of kī, and the pronunciation is so given in some dictionaries. But here it has seemed best to keep the value of the vowels in most cases, according to Spanish rules. Sometimes this practice has appeared misleading; accordingly, Aranjuez, ä-räng-čhōō-ěth', has been given ä-räng-hwěth', as less likely to be confusing.

2. b and v are often interchangeable, and have a sound between b and v, but as this is difficult for a foreigner, it has been given as a simple b, and may be pronounced b or v according to the letter employed in the Spanish word. It is b pronounced without closing the lips.

3. d is often softened or almost lost in Spanish, and in most dictionaries has been given as th. But it has seemed better to indicate it here as a simple d.

4. j and x are interchangeable in Spanish, and have an aspirated sound much like the German ch. If this is not to be acquired, it is better to use an aspirated h as in hither, and the sound is indicated by both ch and h.

5. r is rolled with the tip of the tongue.

Italian.

1. Double consonants in Italian are both pronounced, as the d's in sand dune. Ex. libretto, lē-brät'-tō.

2. Before t the letter n is distinctly pronounced, the effect being of a pause between n and t.
